THIS MACHINE WILL COLLECT THE LIQUID FROM THE USER.

FINALLY THESE LIQUID WILL BE TRANSFER TO THE LUBRICANT. IT COULD INCREASE THE SENSITIVY OF SKIN.

What, Rex?

My thighs are too much for you?

AFTER THE DISAPPEARANCE OF EMMA FROST THROUGH ONE OF THE PORTALS OF DR. STRANGE. NOTHING MORE WAS HEARD OF HER. SHE IS THEORIZED TO HAVE ENDED UP IN SEVERAL OF THE MULTIVERSES, SUCH AS THE UNIVERSE OF THE DINOSAUR PEOPLE, OR THAT OF EARTH 2149... SHE WAS ALSO THEORIZED TO HAVE ARRIVED ON EARTH 714135, THE LAND OF THE... "PECULIAR" DWARF PEOPLE... FOND OF A CERTAIN KIND OF FETISH. GIVEN EMMA FROST'S POWER, IT WAS QUICKLY DISMISSED. THE EXPERIMENTS THERE, WERE CURIOUS, ACCORDING TO OUR ENVOY, WHO WAS SENT FOR CONFIRMATION OF EMMA'S DISAPPEARANCE BY SOME CHANCE. THE DWARFS DENIED HER ARRIVAL. OUR ENVOY ALSO REPORTED THE TYPES OF "EXPERIMENTS" THEY PERFORMED (HE WAS GIVEN A FRIENDLY? WELCOME, IT SEEMS...). THEY WERE TYING PEOPLE FROM OTHER UNIVERSES TO SOME SORT OF PLATFORM, DENYING THEIR POWERS AND STARTING TO PLAY WITH THEIR SKIN, LOOKING FOR THE ANSWER AS TO WHETHER THEY WERE TICKLISH OR NOT. PEOPLE WHO WERE NOT TICKLISH (LIKE OUR ENVOY) WERE QUICKLY DISPATCHED, BUT IF THE PERSON WAS... THEY WOULD BE CLEANED WITH TINY TOOLS (GIANTS TO THEM... HOW COULD THEY EVEN LIFT THEM?), SMEARED WITH DIFFERENT KINDS OF SECRETIONS, GROPED WITH MORE TOOLS... THEY WOULD ALSO COLLECT FLUIDS FROM TICKLISH PEOPLE. I STILL DON'T UNDERSTAND WHY, BUT THEY SEEMED VERY EXCITED ABOUT IT. I THINK THE ENVOY SAID THEY USED IT TO GENERATE THEIR WORLD'S ENERGY, BUT I DON'T THINK THAT'S THE MOST EFFICIENT WAY? WELL, I'M NOT ONE TO GO AND DISPROVE THAT FOR THEM. FOR NOW WE'LL JUST KEEP LOOKING FOR EMMA AND LEAVE THESE STRANGE PEOPLE TO THEIR EXPERIMENTS.

THIS IS SUCH A DELIGHTFUL VIEW OF HER.

Aggh~! It still feels amazing~!

I know we're supposed to be competing with Yang and Raven. But please feel free to cum whenever you want sweetie~

Mmn! You're still so soft~!

Hehe thank you baby~ Glad to know I still got it~

It looks like you've gotten so much bigger~

Heh, yeah I have. Since with your huge ass~

Ooooohh fuuck~
This ass still feels so heavenly~

Eheh~ Even after all this time just a simple assjob is enough to have you quivering~

I-I can't hold it much longer!

No need to hold back sweetie. Just let it all out~ I don't care about winning, I just wanna please you~

Mnnhhg~!

Ohh~ So much~ I missed doing this with you Ruby~

But I'm gonna need you to hold still for a bit~

Eh?! Wait I was chatting there! You're [illegible]ing me so much!

sorry baby. Just had to make sure you didn't shoot too early. I think I heard Ruby finish. Now go ahead and shoot~

Level 3 DARK Spellcaster / Effect

You can only use the (1)st and (2)nd effect of this card's name each once per turn.
(1) If your opponent Special Summons a monster(s) from the Extra Deck: You can target 1 face-up monster you control; Special Summon this card from your hand, then, immediately after this effect resolves, Xyz Summon using only it and the targeted monster. When you do, treat this card's Level the same as that monster's.
(2) If this card is detached to activate an Xyz Monster's effect: You can change the ATK of 1 face-up monster your opponent controls to 0.

Dark Magical Curtain

Quick-Play Spell

You can only activate 1 card with this card's name per turn.
(1) Each player can Special Summon 1 DARK Spellcaster monster from their hand or Deck, then, if your Summoned monster's original name is "Dark Magician" or "Dark Magician Girl", you can add 1 Spell/Trap from your Deck to your hand that mentions "Dark Magician", except "Dark Magicial Curtain", also the Summoned monsters cannot activate their effects this turn.

BUT... WHAT ARE YOU DOING?! DO YOU THINK TOUCHING MY BREASTS WILL SHUT ME UP?

NO... IT'S NOT THAT... I JUST WANTED TO TAKE...

IF YOU'RE GOING TO BE SO ASSERTIVE, THEN SHOW ME HOW TO DO IT PROPERLY. SHOW ME WHAT YOU GOT

I... DON'T THINK THAT'S A GOOD IDEA. I DON'T THINK I CAN THINK STRAIGHT... WHAT WAS IN THAT DRINK?

You are being lied to by your own senses.

Right now, you are strapped to a rock spiraling through the cosmic void at half a million miles per hour. We aren't floating in peaceful circles — we are being violently dragged across the Milky Way.

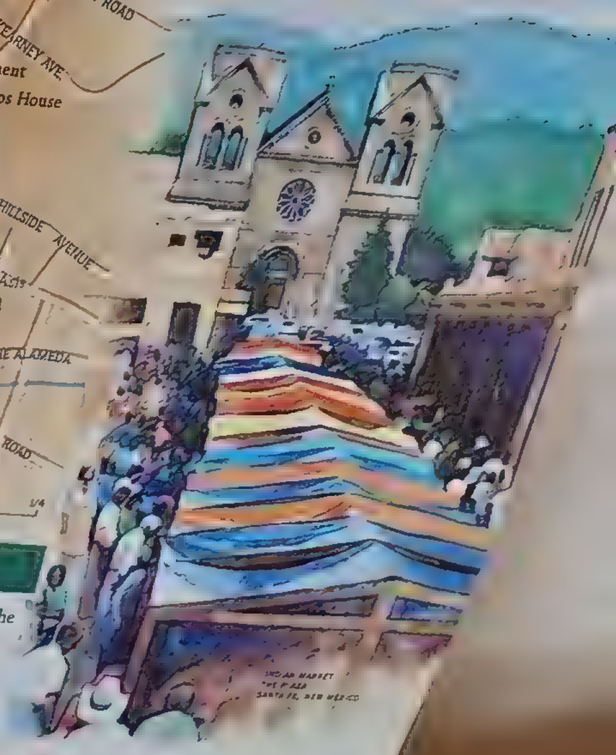
SANTA FE

Once an arena for bloody bullfights and lively fiestas, the plaza has been Santa Fe's hub for nearly 400 years. It still serves as a meeting place for Indian, Hispanic, and Anglo residents whose ancestors shaped the city of the "holy faith."

Clad in adobe and adorned with art galleries, Santa Fe offers opera under the stars, splendid museums, and howling coyote T-shirts. This state capital remains a commercial center for traditional Indian crafts, from pottery to bead work, and hosts hundreds of artisans at Indian Market in August.



"ELSEWHERE the sky is the roof of the world; but here the earth was the floor of the sky." So novelist Willa Cather saw the Four Corners region of the American Southwest, where Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, and Utah meet. Desert canyons and rugged mountains are celebrated in national parks, forests, and monuments. As the region was sculptured by geologic upheaval, wind, and water, the cultural landscape was shaped by diverse Native American societies and, later, by European colonization.

In New Mexico some pre-Columbian ruins of the Anasazi are still linked by traces of road networks once traveled by foot—long before the pickup truck became the region's vehicle of choice.

The largest reservation of the Navajo covers much of northeastern Arizona and extends into neighboring states. Traditional Navajo log homes, or hogans, are built to face the rising sun. Navajo cosmology depicts starry constellations, which First Man and First Woman placed in the sky with their hands.

In the Hopi homeland, surrounded by the Navajo Reservation, Kachina dancers connect with the spirit world. Their images are preserved in carved masks and tithu, or dolls—most of ancient pattern: Snake Dancer, Mountain Sheep, Antelope, and Owl, for instance. Thus Indian societies, from the Pima and Pueblo to the Ute and Apache, remain connected with their venerable past.

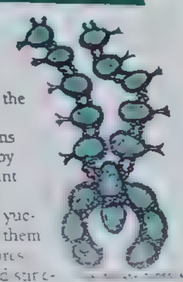
ARTIFACTS



By 300 B.C., pottery had appeared in the Southwest. Anasazi potters used shallow baskets as molds for the bases of their pots. Today Pueblo Indians still shape the clay by hand, they then paint their vessels with brushes of chewed yucca leaves and bake them in dung-burning fires. The Pueblo made distinctive wares for ceremonial and household use. Some are painted with black sheep and human figures and with colorful polychrome designs.

Although turquoise was used in Pueblo jewelry before the Navajo or Spanish arrived, silverwork was learned from Spanish smiths after 1850. The Zuni and Navajo have adapted Spanish designs: Their famous squash-blossom necklaces are actually based on the pomegranate flower, a Spanish heraldic motif.

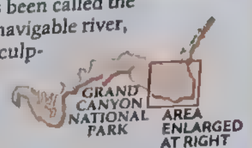
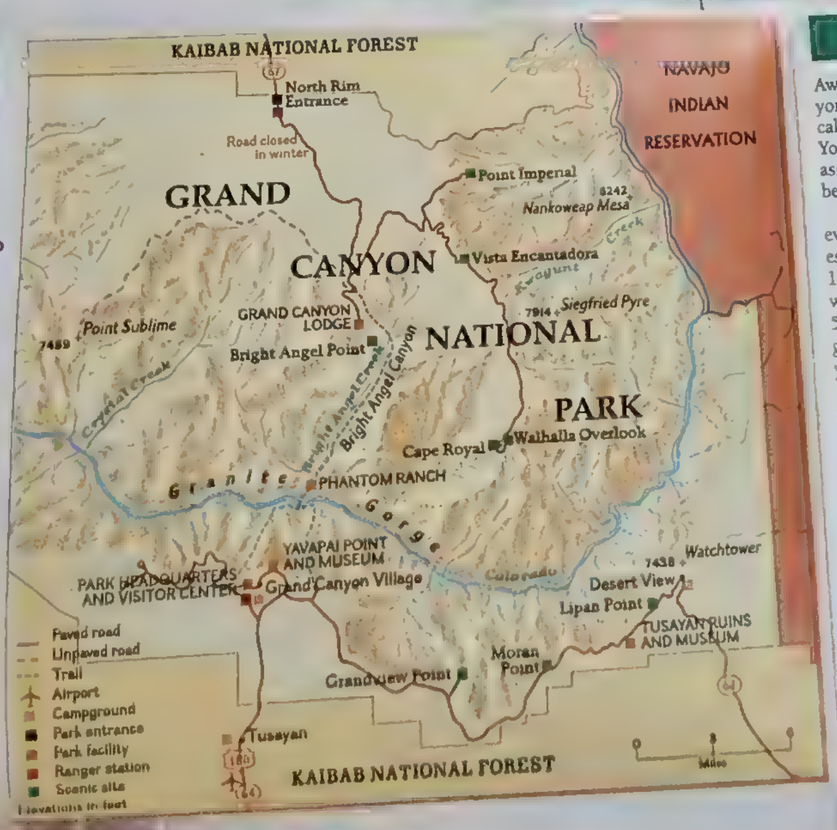
GRAND CANYON

The Colorado has been called the world's roughest navigable river, and the geologic sculpture it has wrought over the past six to ten million years is awesome proof of its power. Its swirling load of rocks and sand scoured the 277-mile-long Grand Canyon a mile into the earth. Until about 1950 fewer than a hundred people had descended the river through the canyon, but army-surplus rubber rafts in use after World War II made the wild stretch of the Colorado more accessible. Now 20,000 visitors a year run the canyon in rafts or wooden dories.



The Hopi believe that their ancestors emerged from the underworld at a place near the canyon called Sipapu. Hopi kivas, or ceremonial chambers, are centered on small openings named after this birthplace. Deep in the canyon, at Supai, is the most remote Indian community in the region. Havasupai Indians living there, despite occasional flash floods during heavy rains, inhabit what some consider the most beautiful setting in Arizona.



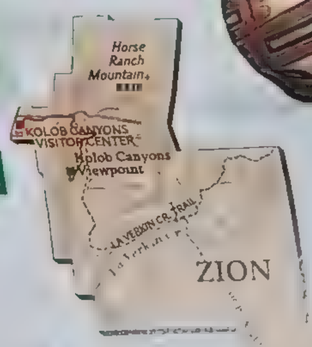
ZION

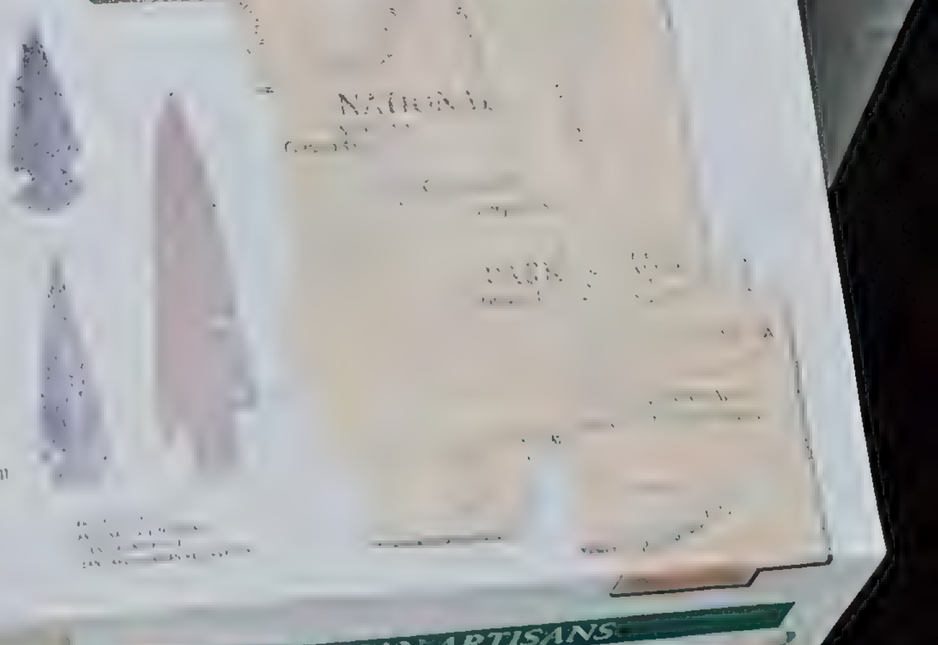
Awestruck by the magnificent canyon, a Mormon settler in the 1860s called the area Little Zion. Brigham Young quelled his followers' enthusiasm for the name, and so the place became Not Zion.

First impressions prevailed, however, and Zion National Park was established in southwestern Utah in 1919. Anasazi ancestors inhabited what is now the park as early as A.D. 500; their petroglyphs and pictographs are still clearly visible on canyon walls.

In the park's famous Narrows, sheer sandstone walls rise 2,000 feet above the North Fork of the Virgin River, which carved them from a vast ancient desert. The Virgin, no retiring maiden, has been known to rise 25 feet in 15 minutes during flash floods. So narrow is the canyon that in places it can be spanned by three men standing abreast with outstretched arms.

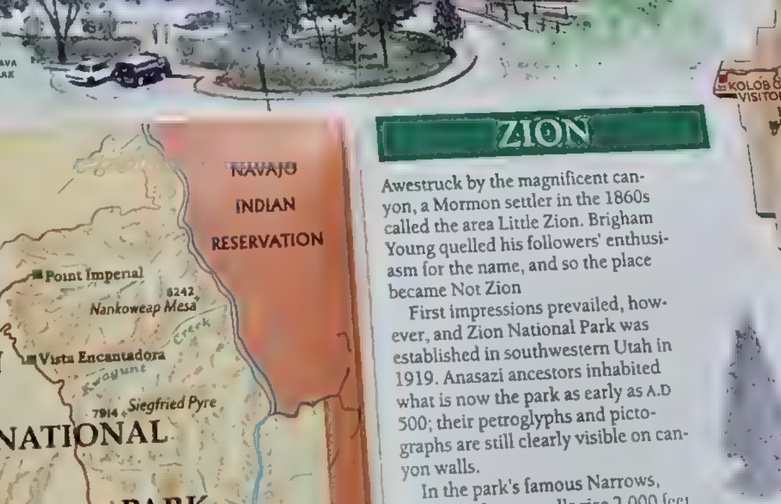
Zion may be affected by modern encroachment. The area's population growth has sparked plans to dam both forks of the river upstream of the park—an "aquatic travesty" to opponents.





CLIFF DWELLERS

The Four Corners region was home to the Anasazi peoples, ancestors of modern Pueblo Indians. By A.D. 700 Anasazi were growing corn, beans, and squash and trading widely. In the 1200s, prompted by drought or raids, some groups suddenly moved to defensible sites on mesas. Others occupied cliffside dwellings, few as large as the Cliff Palace at Mesa Verde. At Canyon de Chelly, Navajo farm and graze sheep on fertile bottomland amid Anasazi ruins and petroglyphs documenting 2,000 years of occupation.



TOMBSTONE

"All you'll ever find in those hills'll be your tombstone!" Ignoring the warning, Ed Schieffelin set off in 1877 to prospect the hills. He struck silver, and the town that grew around his claim became the richest and most lawless mining camp in the West. Tombstone's fame as a national historic landmark with [illegible] today rests on the [illegible] of the gunfighter.

INDIAN ARTISANS

Arts and crafts provide a link to the modern economy for Native American artisans, whose pottery, jewelry, and weaving bring them commercial success. The Navajo were weaving by the 1600s, and by the early 1800s their skill was producing outstanding work. Today rugs in the Two Grey Hills style, named for a trading post near Toadlena, New Mexico, where it developed, are among the finest examples of Navajo weaving. The best rugs are tightly woven with more than a thousand threads to the inch, can bring thousands of dollars each.

THE GRAND EXCHANGE

Kernels of New World corn became a yellow currency more valuable to the well-being of the world than nuggets of gold. Potatoes kept famine from European villages. Sweet potatoes eased China's dependence on rice. Today

The grand exchange goes on.

AMERICAN FOOD FOR ALL

Out of the myriad crops of the Americas two—corn and potatoes—spread so wide that they became staples of human survival.

Corn's impact was potent in Africa, where coastal peoples were raising the new grain by the mid-1500s. Able to survive where wheat and rice could not, corn spurred population growth—a mixed blessing, since large, healthy populations supplied the slave trade.

Potatoes reached Ireland in the 16th century. The once despised tubers helped free the Irish—and, later, other northern Europeans—from recurring famine. A host of other crops, notably beans and squash, enlivened and enriched Europe's drab diet.

HEMISPHERE OF HEALERS

Armed with thousands of medicinal plants—eagerly sought by explorers to supplement Europe's pharmacies—Indian doctors fought goiter, headaches, constipation, and other infirmities. Quinine, derived from Peruvian bark, eased malaria's freeze. Ipecac from Amazonian roots, cured amebic dysentery. Tonic from Canadian evergreen needles remedied scurvy. Today Amazonian herbs enhance some 500 prescription drugs.

So proficient were Aztec healers that conquistadores preferred them to Spanish barber-surgeons, who often left patients worse off. The obsidian blades used by Aztec surgeons rivaled even modern steel for sharpness.

Getting horses across the Atlantic required elaborate restraints. Their progeny revealed untold communication and transportation in the New World.

Transplanted Old World crops—oats, wheat, and barley—proved well suited to the tropics and flourished in more temperate regions.

Europeans conducted the slave trade, but slavery barely took root in Europe itself, which had a chronic labor surplus.

First domesticated in New Guinea 10,000 to 12,000 years ago, sugarcane reached the Americas in 1493, when Columbus carried plants from the Canary Islands. Sugar profits came with a grim cost: the enslavement of Africans for labor.

Native to the Great Plains and cultivated by Indians, sunflowers thrived on the cold expanses of northern Europe. Russia, too harsh for olives, particularly welcomed the new plant as a source of cooking oil. Sunflowers also served as fodder.

EXCHANGE

China relies on American crops for more than a third of its food supply.) Dyes from Brazil and Peru became as coveted as Far Eastern spices; Mexico's cochineal dye, which put the red in redcoat, was second only to silver in its importance as an export by the late 1500s.

Much of what the Americas received was of comparable value: grains, vegetables, livestock, technology. As chocolate went east, coffee came west, thriving in the Caribbean and Brazil. Wheat from the Middle East has made North America's Great Plains the "breadbasket of the world." Even the cowboy, that homegrown hero, had distant origins—a Moorish legacy transmitted by Spanish horsemen.

For good and for ill, those 17 ships of the second voyage began a worldwide evolution toward astonishing ends: Remote Asian families living on amaranth, a grain revered by the Aztec; Britons finding New World chiles in their Chinese takeout; Peruvians importing Dutch potatoes, African rice grown in Louisiana by displaced French—on Indian lands. Five centuries after it started, the grand exchange goes on.

Sheep thrived in high lands, notably in Peru, where flocks arrived in the 1520s. Half a century later some 20 taxed mines had opened there.

Sturdy three-masted naos and other ships crowded Lisbon harbor in 1590. Europeans had sailing ships and global ambitions; Indians did not. Thus contact began at Europe's initiative—and proceeded largely on Europe's terms.

Getting horses across the Atlantic required elaborate restraints. Their progeny revolutionized communication and transportation in the New World.

TECHNOLOGY TRANSPLANT

"If there is a single key to the European conquest of the Americas, it is the horse," historian William H. McNeill has written. So did horses, donkeys, and oxen. Europeans set them to familiar tasks: pulling wagons, plowing, carrying warriors. Indians adopted many of their conquerors' innovations, taking to the horse and in some cases the plow. Weavers, dyers, and other textile masters gradually introduced new techniques to American cloth production. By 1571 dozens of workshops—some with hundreds of Indian workers—dotted central Mexico alone.

Europe suffered outbreaks of syphilis following Columbus's return from the New World. Medical historians, however, still debate the disease's origin.

Taken to the Americas in 1493, hogs proved adaptable and prolific.

Dispatched with most expeditions, Jesuits and other clerics found willing converts among the Indians, but lost influence when they could not protect native peoples from abuse.

Castilian cattle, hardy and able to forage almost anywhere, arrived in the Caribbean in 1493. By 1520, herds comprised Spanish breeds of domestic fowl were quickly adopted by Indians, who developed several new varieties.

Transplanted Old World crops—oats, wheat, rye and barley—proved unsuited to the tropics but flourished in more temperate regions.

English botanist John Gerard was the first, in 1597, to print an illustration of the potato. Europeans initially grew potatoes as garden vegetables, not as cash crops.

Europeans conducted the slave trade, but slavery barely took root in Europe itself, which had a chronic labor surplus.

Englishman Francis Drake, best known for raiding Spanish settlements and ships in the Caribbean, traded slaves early in his career during a 1567 raid on the African coast.

An unknown cartographer risked death by cutting the "antipsphere" (at left, above) for an Italian duke. The map reveals Portugal's secret composition of explorers' reports.

First domesticated in New Guinea 10,000 to 12,000 years ago, sugarcane reached the Americas in 1493, when Columbus carried plants from the Canary Islands. Sugar profits came with a grim cost: the enslavement of Africans for labor.

Yankee Stadium April 18, 1923 The Yankees open their new ballpark, which stands across the Harlem River from their old home, the Polo Grounds. Babe Ruth hits a three-run home run in the third inning against Boston's Howard Ehmke in New York's 4–1 win and the stadium is quickly dubbed The House that Ruth Built by Fred Lieb of New York's Evening Telegram.

Yankee Stadium Sept. 30, 1927 Babe Ruth does his old record one better by becoming the first player in baseball history to hit 60 home runs in a season. His two-run blast off Washington's Tom Zachary in the eighth inning breaks a 2–2 tie and gives the Yankees a 4–2 win.

Yankee Stadium Oct. 10, 1926 With two out in the ninth inning of Game 7—Cardinals leading the Yankees 3–2—St. Louis second baseman Rogers Hornsby applies the tag on an attempted steal of second base by Babe Ruth, the final out of the World Series.

Griffith Stadium Oct. 10, 1924 Earl > McNeely's bad hop double over Giants third baseman Fred Lindstrom's head in the 12th inning scores Muddy Ruel with the winning run as the Senators beat New York 4–3 in Game 7 of the World Series. Walter Johnson pitched four scoreless innings in relief for the win.

Wrigley Field Aug. 25, 1922 With the wind blowing out, the Cubs top the Phillies 26–23 in Chicago in the highest scoring game in baseball history.

Sportsman's Park May 5, 1925 Thirty-eight year-old Ty Cobb has six hits, including three home runs, in the Tigers' 14–8 win over the Browns. Cobb set the modern record for total bases with 16. The following day, Cobb, who finished with only 117 career home runs, blasts two more out.

Forbes Field Oct. 2, 1920 The Pirates host baseball's last tripleheader. Pittsburgh loses the first two games to the Reds but avoids the sweep by winning the nightcap 6–0.

WHAT THE...? HEY, STOP! NO! NOT THAT!

WHATS THE MATTER, DEBBIE? IS SOMETHING WRONG?

WHO WOULD HAVE THOUGHT THAT NOLAN'S WIFE WOULD BE SUCH A LITTLE THING THAT A FEW TICKLES COULD DEFEAT HER SO EASILY.

WHY? WHY DOES IT HAVE TO BE TICKLES? STOP IT! N...NO! OH MY GOD! I CAN'T STAND IT! IT'S INSUFFERABLE!

TICKLING IS RARELY TAKEN AS A TRUE METHOD OF TORTURE...

MAYBE BECAUSE IT'S CONSIDERED A CHILDISH METHOD, BUT IT'S NOT CHILDISH AT ALL, IS IT?

MAKE THEM STOP! PLEASE!

1. learn to love doing what you hate.

Tyson said discipline is doing what you hate, but doing it like you love it.

he didn't enjoy every 5am run..

he knew the man he wanted to become was forged in the work nobody else would do.

learn to love the process.

dmt_dreams "At the deepest level, an 'open heart' is spacious presence, in which the sense of separateness between yourself and the 'other' dissolves and there is the recognition of oneness, of shared consciousness. That recognition is love. Sensing the formless essence in another and recognizing it as one with your own essence - that's what love is. All this is an intrinsic part of the awakened consciousness and the revelation of the spiritual dimension of life."- Eckhart Tolle

Then the pall of smoke cleared, and we skimmed over the outer wall of the palace grounds, too fast to be targeted by ground-to-air fire, the upturned faces of guards and besiegers alike identical masks of astonishment.[11] Abruptly, I found myself pressed hard against the crash webbing, as the pilot kicked in the retros, killing our forward momentum, then my stomach seemed to float free of my body as we dropped towards the ground. It was just as well Jurgen wasn't with me, I thought, as he was prone to airsickness at the best of times, and this was hardly one of those. Without warning, an ork-sized boot seemed to kick me in the fundament, and the noise of the engines died back to almost bearable levels. We were down.

'Prepare to disembark,' Gries said, as the ramp began to drop, letting in a swirl of damp air, lightly scented with burning vegetation from the heat of our landing thrusters. Trosque's fire-team[12] deployed first, jogging down the ramp and securing it; I was pleased to see that they were taking nothing for granted, even though we were supposed to be meeting allies. After a moment the sergeant assured us that all was well, and Gries and his command squad followed. Seeing no reason to delay any further, and convinced that if there was treachery afoot there could be no better place to discover the fact than from behind a solid wall of bolter-carrying ceramite, I trotted after them, trying to look as imposing as I could given that my head barely came up to the level of their pauldrons.

As my bootsoles hit solid ground, crunching a little on the ashes and baked mud which still smoked gently beneath the Thunderhawk, I got a lungful of smoke and tried to suppress the reflex to cough. No one else was, and I didn't want to be the one to undermine the dignity of the occasion.

As Gries stepped off the bottom of the ramp, he paused for a moment, two of his companions at either shoulder and an exact pace behind. Taken briefly by surprise, I stopped too, just short of walking into the back of him, and level with the other four Astartes, completing the line, and, of course, completely invisible from the front.

Melee can be either a thunderstrike gauntlet or a Reaper chainsword

Errant: Short range melta fire + melee, aggressive pice
Paladin: Long range mass low armour percing fire + Melle
Warden: Anti infantry gun + Melee
Defender: long range anti tank that protects the units behind it
Gallant: Pure melee, aggressive pice you just run the fuck at someone and it keeps going till it dies
Crusader: Guns, All of them. Longrange supressing fire, anti infantry, or midrange melta Preceptor: Mid asf but it boosts armigers?

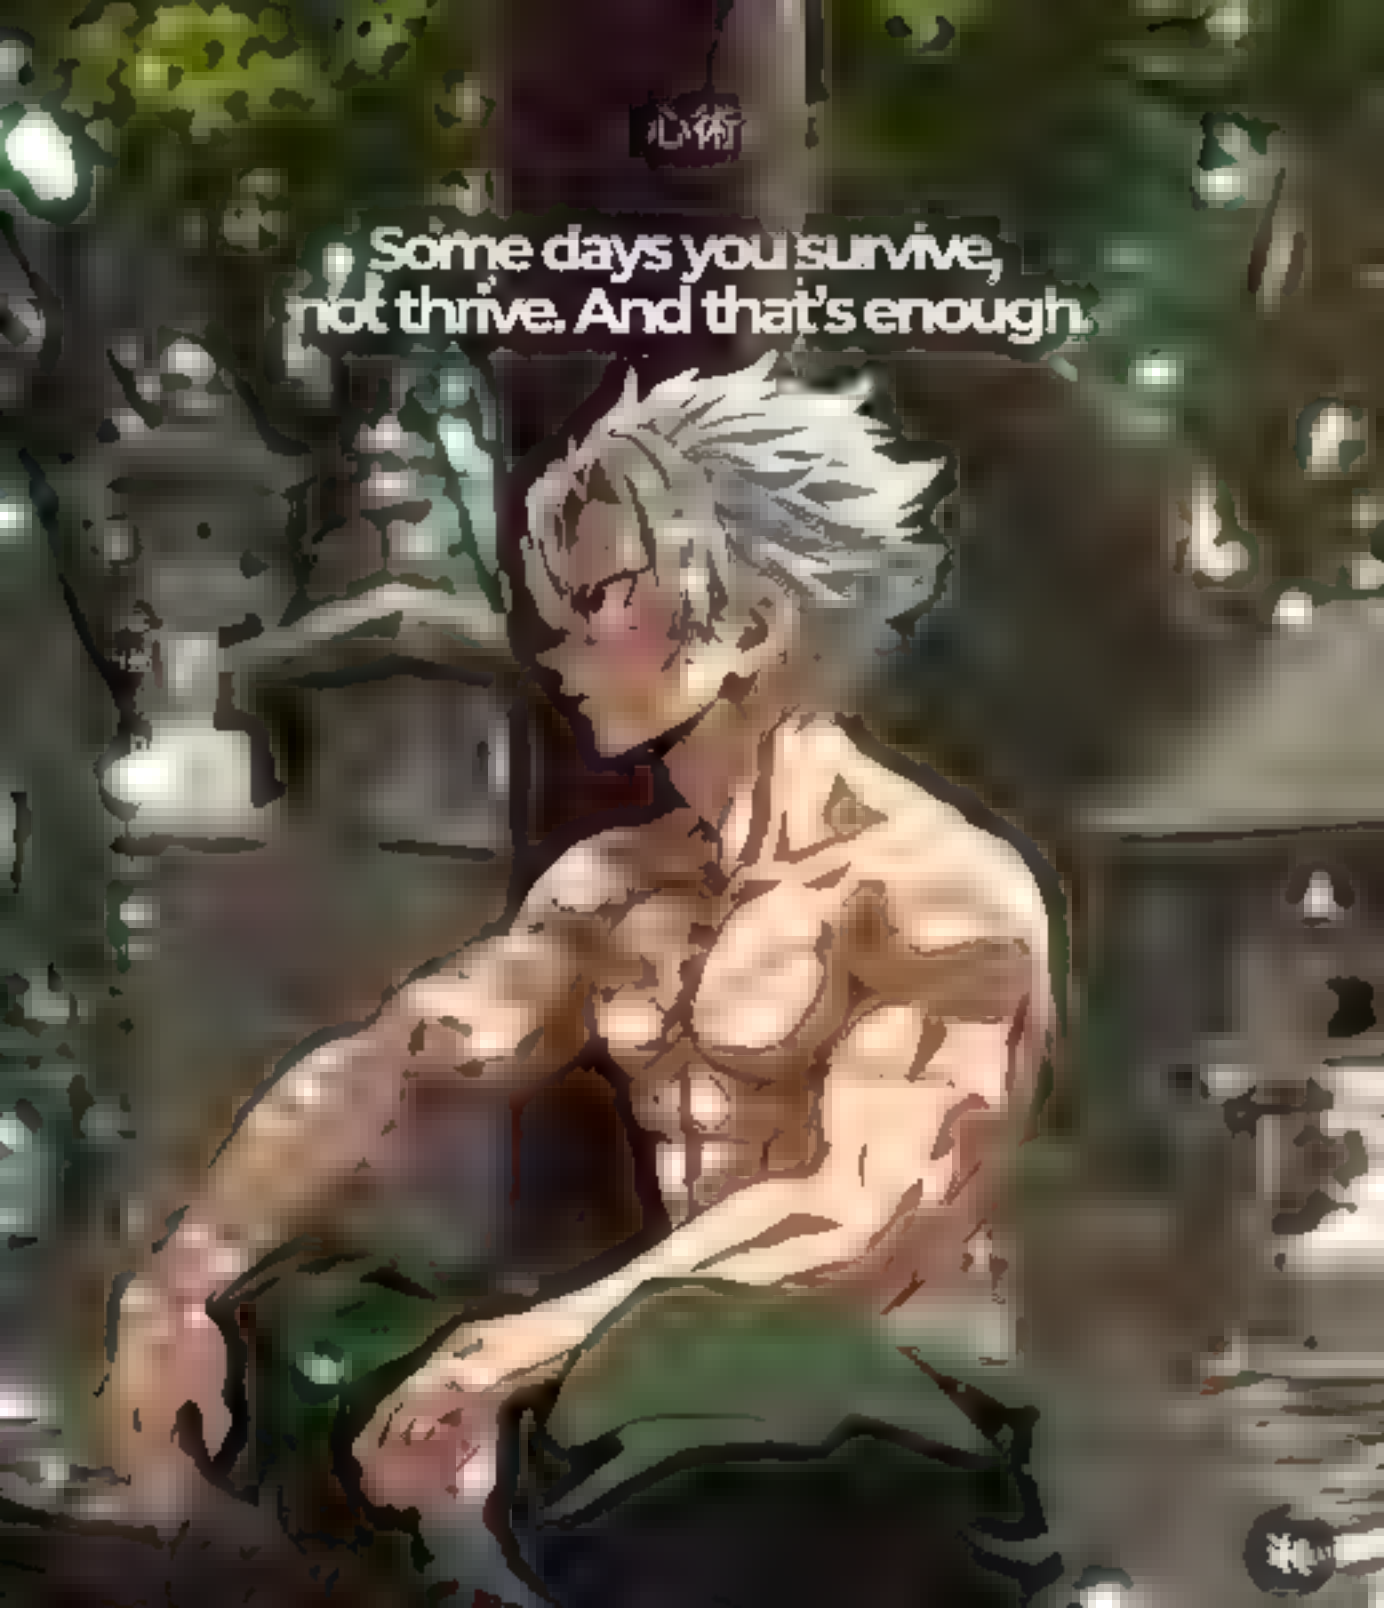
Not strong every day,
but grateful every time.



心術
Some days you survive, not thrive. And that's enough.

Strength isn't constant. Grace is giving yourself permission to be human.

Even on weak days, there's something to be thankful for. Finish it.

Funny thing is, my mom love her plants but every time we get aloe, she accidentally kills them.

My uncle had one in his basement, dust and all was covering it and looks healthy by the window. Im not sure when the last time he watered it lol.

This is called a trauma-based attachment response.
Love feels unfamiliar.
Distance feels familiar.
So your body chooses what it knows.

BHANGARH FORT, RAJASTHAN, INDIA 5/10

During the daytime, tourists are allowed in Bhangarh Fort; however, as the sun sets, you need to get out of there as quickly as possible, especially if you are afraid of ghosts. The Indian government deemed the fort haunted because the building is full of legends about ghosts and curses that are so scary. Those who have tried to break this rule mysteriously disappeared.

NORTH BROTHER ISLAND, NEW YORK, USA

A ship sank and about 1,000 passengers took refuge on the island. It later became a hospital for people with contagious diseases, including Mary Mallon, aka Typhoid Mary. Mary was the first recorded patient to have typhoid fever, and she infected 50 other people, three of whom died. Today the island is abandoned, and it has become a bird sanctuary.

PLUTO'S GATE, TURKEY 7/10

Pluto's Gate, is a temple that was seen as a passage to the underworld. The legend said that no one could survive there, and a historian threw sparrows inside to test it, and they immediately died. In 1965, scientists confirmed this legend when they found that the CO2 levels were so high, and at night it got cold enough that it formed a lake on the bottom of the gate. Any living being could not survive more than a few seconds there.

Did a little experimenting with the program, and im super pleased I can do more photoshop type things.

Not my best but this was fun to do. Looking forward to fine tuning and learn more capabilities with the program.

Hope yall enjoy 🙏

♫ Synthwave Goose • Blade Runner 2049

There is a species of jellyfish, Turritopsis dohrnii, that is biologically immortal. When it faces physical damage or starvation, it doesn't die; instead, it transforms its cells back into their earliest polyp state and starts its life cycle all over again. This process, known as transdifferentiation, means it can theoretically live forever unless it is eaten by a predator.

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

About 50 light-years away, in the dim glow of a quiet red dwarf star, lurks one of the most intriguing exoplanets ever spotted: LHS 1140 b.This super-Earth—roughly 1.7 times Earth's diameter and about 5-6 times its mass—orbits firmly in its star's habitable zone, receiving just the right amount of energy for liquid water to potentially exist. But thanks to groundbreaking observations from the James Webb Space Telescope (JWST) in late 2023 and analyzed in 2024, scientists now believe this world is far stranger and more promising than first thought.Early data suggested it might be a mini-Neptune shrouded in thick hydrogen-helium gases. JWST's precise transit spectroscopy, however, ruled that out decisively. Instead, LHS 1140 b appears to be a dense, rocky super-Earth with a surprisingly high water content—possibly 10-20% of its mass locked in ice or liquid form—making it a prime candidate for an ocean world.Because it's tidally locked (one side eternally faces the star, the other forever in darkness), extreme temperature contrasts dominate. The dark hemisphere likely stays frozen solid, blanketed in thick ice like a cosmic snowball. But on the star-facing "dayside," models suggest a vast liquid ocean could persist—perhaps warmed enough by stellar heat and a possible greenhouse atmosphere to stay fluid, forming a bright, watery "iris" amid the surrounding ice.The result? A planet that eerily resembles a giant eyeball staring forever at its sun: dark, icy globe pierced by a gleaming blue ocean patch, possibly shrouded in clouds or hazes.Hints from JWST data even point to a nitrogen-rich atmosphere—similar in composition to Earth's—along with possible traces of water vapor and carbon dioxide.
If confirmed, this would mark one of the strongest detections yet of an atmosphere on a rocky, habitable-zone exoplanet outside our solar system.Could life thrive in that eternal oceanic spotlight, insulated by ice on all sides and protected from harsh stellar flares by a substantial atmosphere? We don't know yet. But among thousands of known exoplanets, LHS 1140 b stands out as arguably our best bet so far for indirectly confirming surface liquid water on an alien world—and perhaps even probing for biosignatures in future observations.A haunting reminder of the universe's wild creativity: worlds that defy imagination, hidden just a cosmic stone's throw away.p

(Artist impressions courtesy of astronomical visualizations depicting LHS 1140 b as a potential icy world with a substellar ocean, complete with contrasting frozen and liquid hemispheres.)

About Your Spiritual Gifts

Spiritual gifts are tools God gives Christians to do the work of the ministry — to fulfill the Great Commission to reach, baptize, and teach and to minister to one another. Every Christian receives at least one gift at the moment of salvation. Spiritual gifts are not rewards, are not natural talents, are not a place of service, are not an age-group ministry, and are not a specialty ministry. They express themselves through various ministries which, in turn, accomplish a variety of results.

A spiritual gift is the primary channel by which the Holy Spirit ministers the believer. It is a supernatural capacity for service to God — and He gives you a supernatural desire to perform the duties of that gift. Spiritual gifts are tools for building the church. They are a source of joy in your Christian life and influence your motives. A spiritual gift is a divine calling with a divine responsibility, because what God has gifted you to do, He has called you to do, and what He has called you to do, He has gifted you to do.

Three categories of spiritual gifts exist:

CATEGORY ONE: The Miraculous Gifts, generally known today as Charismatic Gifts (apostles, tongues, interpretation of tongues, healing, and miracles).

CATEGORY TWO: The Enabling Gifts, which all Christians have the ability to develop (faith, discernment, wisdom, and knowledge — qualities possessed rather than activities performed). Many scholars combine these gifts with others, based on the similarity of these gift characteristics and the synonyms used by Paul to describe them in Scripture. For example, some scholars combine Discernment with Prophecy, Knowledge with Teaching, Wisdom with Exhortation, and Hospitality with Serving.

CATEGORY THREE: the Team Gifts, which are service-, ministry-, task-oriented or are activities performed such as teaching. The Team Gifts are functional and involve speaking or ministering. Chances are, you have several of these gifts that vary in degrees and intensity. In many cases, spiritual gifts may complement your secular employment. The Spiritual Gifts Survey you took identified your dominant TEAM GIFTS, which will help find your place on God's team in your church.

Prayer and serving God will also help you see where God wants you to serve in ministry in your church and daily life. This profile gives you a simple bar graph showing your strengths (higher scores, longer bars) and weaknesses (lower scores, shorter bars) as related to spiritual gifts, and analyzes in-depth your dominant and secondary team gifts which are the ones that will have greater influence in your life. These are the areas where you are gifted to be most effective and efficient and in which you will find it easiest to excel.

Your Dominant Gifts

Your Dominant Gifts

Mercy-Showing

The results of your Spiritual Gifts Inventory indicate that your number one dominant gift is MERCY-SHOWING!

The Greek word "eleeo" means to feel sympathy with or for others. As a mercy-shower you have the Spirit-given capacity and desire to serve God by identifying with and comforting those who are in distress. You understand and comfort your fellow Christian. You enter into the grief or happiness of others and have the ability to show empathy which is to feel WITH others, not just for others.

As a mercy-shower you are willing to deal with and minister to people who have needs that most people feel very uncomfortable working with. You seem to say the right thing at the right time. Your personality is likely one of soft-spoken love. It hurts you to scold someone; you are very non-condemning. People love you because of all the love you give them. You find it easy to express yourself and are outgoing with a low-key, inoffensive personality. You are easy to talk to, responsive to people, a good listener, peaceable, and agreeable. You tend to make decisions based on feelings more than fact and like to think about things for a while before making a decision.

In your burden to comfort others, your heart goes out to the poor, the aged, the ill, the underprivileged, and so on. You tend to attract people who are hurting or rejoicing because you identify with them. Be careful not to let others use you. Try not to resent others who are not as understanding as you. Refrain from becoming a gossiper when you are around other mercy-showers. Do not let your circumstances control you. Because of your supernatural ability to show mercy, others accuse you of taking up for people, being a softy and a compromiser. They may think you are too emotional.

Mercy-showers make excellent counselors. However, left untrained, you may destroy yourself by your tendency to take people\'s problems home with you. Your empathy can become detrimental without personal training on how to deal with it.

Beware of Satan's attack on your gift. He can cause pride because of your ability to relate to others. He may influence you to disregard rules and authority. You may experience a lack of discipline because of strong feeling for those who hurt due to disobedience and sin. Don't fall into Satan's trap of complaining and griping.

How can you use this gift?

Your gift is used best in times of sorrow and in times of great joy. It fits well with another gift of service such as deacon, youth worker or hospital visitation. With a counseling course, you could become a good counselor. You may serve as a hospital, nursing home, or shut-in worker; a funeral coordinator and provider of sympathy and support; or a poverty center worker. You would do well as an usher or greeter and welcome center worker or hospitality person. You may want to work in a telephone ministry. You would make people feel welcome on a newcomer visitation team. Other appropriate ministry areas include missions, committee member, furlough assistance, and correspondence helper. You would work well with the elderly and with people who have mental and physical disabilities, in nursing, and with special ministries to migrants, released offenders or abused children and women.

Your Dominant Gifts

Mercy-Showing

The results of your Spiritual Gifts Inventory indicate that your number one dominant gift is MERCY-SHOWING!

The Greek word "eleeo" means to feel sympathy with or for others. As a mercy-shower you have the Spirit-given capacity and desire to serve God by identifying with and comforting those who are in distress. You understand and comfort your fellow Christian. You enter into the grief or happiness of others and have the

Shepherding

The results of your Spiritual Gifts Inventory indicate that your number two dominant gift is SHEPHERDING!

The Greek word “poimen” means pastor. In Paul’s spiritual gifts listing in Ephesians 4:11, this term is translated “pastor.” Although the word “poimen” is translated pastor only one time in Scripture it is used sixteen additional times. The remaining sixteen are all translated “shepherd.” Therefore, we are actually discussing the GIFT of shepherding, not the POSITION of pastor. Though a good pastor must have the gift of shepherding, everyone who has the gift of shepherding is not called to be pastor. The gift can be used in many positions in a church.

As a gifted shepherd, you have the Spirit-given capacity and desire to serve God by overseeing, training, and caring for the needs of a group of Christians. You are usually very patient, people-centered, and willing to spend time in prayer for others. You tend to be a “Jack of All and Master of ONE,” meaning you are usually dominant in one of the speaking gifts (evangelist, prophet, teacher, exhorter) as well. You are often authoritative, more a leader than a follower, and expressive, composed, and sensitive. Your pleasing personality draws people to you.

You have a burden to see others learn and grow and are protective of those under your care. You want to present the whole Word of God and do not like to present the same materials more than once. You are willing to study what is necessary to feed your group and are more relationship oriented than task oriented. You are a peace-maker and diplomat – very tolerant of people\'s weaknesses. You tend to remember people\'s names and faces. You are more concerned with doing for others than others doing for you. You are faithful and devoted and may become a workaholic. You can become an all-purpose person in order to meet needs.

People with the gift of shepherding make the best Sunday school teachers and group leaders because their desire is to go beyond just teaching or leading, to shepherd and minister to the daily needs of their students. The position of Sunday school teacher or group leader is an extension of the pastoral ministry in the church. These groups should be shepherded on a small scale the same as the pastor shepherds the whole congregation on a large scale.

Be careful to involve other people; don’t try to do it all yourself. Work on making people accountable. Do not be overly protective of your “flock.” Because of these potentially weak areas, other people may think it is your job to do all the work; they rely too heavily on you. You may be expected to be available at all times, know all the answers, and be at every function. Learn when to say no.

Beware of Satan’s attack on your gift. He will cause discouragement when the load gets heavy, and pride because your “sheep” look up to you. You may develop family problems because of too little time and attention. You may become selfish when “sheep” feed in other pastures.

How can you use this gift?

This gift is a great help in many areas. You may serve as a Sunday school teacher, small group leader, pastor or assistant pastor, bus captain, special ministry leader (such as youth, children, men, etc.), nursery worker or as a half-way house or other type shelter volunteer. You may consider serving as a dormitory leader in a college, orphanage, children’s home, etc. Scout troops would appreciate your assistance as a den leader.

Evangelism

The results of your Spiritual Gifts Inventory indicate that your number three dominant gift is EVANGELISM!

That does not necessarily mean you are supposed to travel the world, preaching the Gospel. The Greek word "Evangelistes" means to proclaim glad tidings, a messenger of good. It denotes a proclaimer of the Gospel. The evangelist can either be a preacher who stands before a crowd, imploring them to be saved, or perhaps an individual sitting in a living room or on a plane, trying to persuade someone to accept Christ. As an evangelist you have the Spirit-given capacity and desire to serve God by leading people who are beyond your natural sphere of influence to the saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. You are sometimes classified as the aggressive soulwinner who seeks the lost.

As an evangelist you are likely very outgoing and personable. You compliment even strangers and are not afraid to ask them questions about their lifestyle – such as where they work, what hobbies they have, what's their favorite sports team, where they were born, and do they attend church. This opens the door to talk about their relationship with Jesus Christ – something you're itching to do. Be careful not to be too overbearing or you may push some people farther away from Christ.

You have great joy in seeing people come to Christ and are often consumed with the desire to confront sinners with the Gospel. You urge other Christians to do the same by directly telling them they must win souls or by encouraging them by telling about your most recent experience. However, you must be careful not to belittle them or make them feel unspiritual because they do not have the burden for lost souls like you do.

You probably have memorized Scripture so you are not caught "empty-handed" while witnessing. Rather than waiting for opportunities to present the Gospel, the evangelist often makes opportunities. Since you will influence so many people, you must be careful to live in such a manner that you do not bring reproach upon your message. For instance, if you influence 30 people and only one of them accepts Christ immediately, the other 29 are left to be harvested later (by you or someone else). If you were to fall spiritually, your life's witness may negatively influence those 29 onlookers against Christianity.

If you are a new Christian, you may want to begin using your gift by providing prospects to seasoned evangelists and giving testimonies to those you knew before you were saved. Perhaps you could pair up with an experienced evangelist to follow up on prospects and visit strangers for the purpose of reaching them for Christ.

If you are a more mature Christian, with experience in evangelizing, take a new Christian "evangelist" under your wing. Share your experiences with him or her and provide encouragement. Continue to look for opportunities to share the Gospel and lead souls to Christ.

Other people may tend to think you are pushy, that you are more interested in numbers than people, and that you judge their spirituality by the number of souls they have won. Beware that Satan can attack your gift by causing pride in your number of converts, causing failure to grow and learn, causing you to see people as numbers rather than people with needs, causing discouragement when converts are few or infrequent, and causing a lack of concern for Bible passages that cannot be used as "soulwinning texts."

How can you use this gift?

There are many avenues in which you can carry out the gift of evangelism. Visitation programs are the most obvious. You may enjoy visiting juvenile detention centers or jails, going door-to-door, going to orphanages and shelters for women or the homeless, and of course, following up on visitors in their homes. Your gift is a plus for leading people to Christ during an invitation or altar call. You could participate in special evangelistic efforts, such as fairs and other events. Your gift also fits well in church planting, on Gospel teams, immigrant ministry, men's or women's conferences, and many public speaking ministries.

Building an effective team in your church depends on putting the right people in the right places. The best way to determine what place each person belongs in is by determine everyone's spiritual gifts. But, just discovering your spiritual gift is not enough.

Here's the real challenge. Many Christians are asking the question, "What is my spiritual gift?" When in reality they need to be asking, "What is a spiritual gift?" They do not understand the relationships of spiritual gifts. That is, they don't understand how a spiritual gift relates to their life, how it relates to the will of God for their life, how it relates to the lives of those around them, how it relates the local church, or how it relates to the body of Christ as a whole. To give John J. Christian an additional name and make him John J. Exhorter Christian is only doing him an injustice. Having a new name or title does not make you a more effective, more fulfilled, or a better Christian, nor does it give you any more understanding of yourself or those around you. Most contemporary material written on spiritual gifts does an adequate job in helping you recognize, discover, and define what your spiritual gifts are. Also, many do a fine job of teaching on the individual parts of the body, but few complete their teaching by assembling the body, thus showing how church members can work as complementing, effective, and efficient team. Thus, teaching a person only what their spiritual gift is without teaching them what a spiritual gift is, is like giving someone a new tool without giving them the operator's manual. They will never understand it fully nor will they be able to use it to its maximum potential. The same is true with your spiritual gifts.

Now that you have taken this inventory and know what your spiritual gifts are, we encourage you to study the principles that revolve around and relate to spiritual gifts. These principles combined with recognizing your gifts have been proven to dramatically change lives AND build churches. We have many resources available to help you better understand your gifts and how they relate to all areas of your life. Plus, we have resources to equip and assist you in teaching spiritual gifts and biblical team building to others. Furthermore, we have teachers who can come to your church and teach private seminars for you group. For additional information on resources or seminars just click on the appropriate button below.

In 1989, a Costa Rican fisherman named Gilberto "Chito" Shedden rescued a crocodile that had been shot in the head. After nursing the crocodile back to health, Chito released it back into the wild.

But to his surprise, the next day, the crocodile, whom he had named "Pocho," followed him home and ended up sleeping on his porch.

The crocodile kept returning, and over time, Chito began training Pocho. Slowly, they developed a deep bond that lasted a lifetime.

For over twenty years, Chito swam with Pocho in the river near his home, often at night. They would play, talk, and share affectionate moments, with Chito hugging, kissing, and caressing the crocodile.

Chito's first wife left him because of the time he spent with Pocho, but he shrugged it off, saying he could always find another wife, but never another Pocho.

There's a beautiful phrase that says:
"What we give doesn't always is always what we are."

The Emperor is still a perpetual right?

Shouldn't he been regenerating his injuries

11

@Gargsco • 6h ago
Yes an no, the answer is complicated.

Yes, he is a Perpetual and as thus is capable of regenerating. He is, at least in part, even helped in this by the golden throne, as Dorn and Valdor had hoped he would be, by putting him there.

However, he was wounded grievously by Horus who, at that point, was mostly a living avatar/vessel for the power of the Ruinous Powers.

Theirs is a power incredibly corrosive and corrupting, twisting the fabric of the galaxy into wrongness and leaving their taint whereever they tread.

It is because the Emperors injuries were inflicted by their combined power that they fester, proving far more resilient and harder to regenerate than any other wound would be.

In addition, it is described that the Emperor and Horus fought on hundreds of different battlefields accross many realities. They faced one another in chess and heated argument, in competitions of skill and raw destructive power and prowess. Basically any kind of „battle" imaginable.

The Emperor lost most of those, losing aspects of himself in time with those losses and severely damaging his soul and self.

Now, the Emperor is placed on the throne, body and mind mutilated nearly to the breaking point, the golden throne a nexus of focus for his strength that may help him regenerate, yet also puts immense strain on him, as that strength needs to keep the Astronomicon lit and shining, lest humanity fall into the darkness of old night once more (like Imperium Nihilus). He also needs to expend energy to keep the gate to the webway shut, lest uncounted hordes of daemons break through and flood into Terra.

In short, due to both the twisted „quality" of his wound and the immense effort he has to expend at every moment, he dies and withers as fast as he heals and regenerates, keeping him locked in an endless state between life and death.

(Sorry for the overly long answer, I wanted to include more than cursory details. Also yes, there are holes in this explanation. Some are because I do kot know enough about the lore, some are because GW cannot have the Emperor leave the throne as long as Warhammer keeps printing money.)

@Avenger-K • 6h ago
@Gargsco Really good explanation, one of the best and most complete I've seen.

@AntonsVoice • 6h ago
@Gargsco oh... And here I am focusing on the physical wounds ...

@Gargsco • 5h ago
@AntonsVoice They are definitely part of it as well.

It is just a topic I spent a long time thinking about, especially because there are a ton of ways you could theoretically help him recover in some way (even if only by freeing up some of his energy) that should work.

They are just not employed, because Warhammer can have no end or solution, because it is Warhammer.

(Or because I am missing something.)

But, to be honest, parts of what I wrote in that long reply are definitely wrong on some level. My extremely specific deep dives into certain topics just do not give me enough breadth of knowledge for there not to be.

@Ragin_Phoenix • 6h ago
I think the Ole Four rigged up Horus's weapons with their taint. If not completely, the regenerating progress is slowed down to the lowest it can be

11

@cernunnos8344 • 6h ago
He could but leaving the Throne would turn off the Astronomican
